

Back Cove Women's Residential Program

Gender-Responsive
Addiction Treatment

Individual & Group
Therapy

Comprehensive Assessments

Holistic Wellness
Services

Fully immersing yourself in a peaceful, therapeutic environment where you can focus on your recovery and healing your mind, body and spirit is essential. The Back Cove Women's Residential Program and Recovery Center in Maine provides just the environment and care you need. This 30-day inpatient program reduces outside distractions and offers a safe, structured environment that provides a solid foundation for recovery. Call us today!

Remember Who You Wanted To Be™

855-912-8130 | www.crossroadsme.org

Front Page

For only $165 a night, book a room at the Loon Lodge Inn and channel the Gannett Publishing empire.

BY COLIN W. SARGENT

WHAT A BLAST—to rusticate or host a wedding at the mythic Loon Lodge Inn, created in Rangeley in 1909. Your guests will love tucking into craft cocktails at the Inn’s intimate Pickford Pub: “appetizers include calamari, mussels, crisp pork belly, flatbreads, and more.” Or maybe they’ll dream of tearing into ribeye, pan-roasted rack of lamb, or Atlantic salmon in the post-and-beam dining room, with everything made from scratch. This resort is classic Maine in the 21st century.

Every blast has a past. Gannett Publishing Co., the legendary former owners of the Portland newspapers, used to own this glamour retreat, along with the 4,116-foot Saddleback Mountain ski resort, so near the lodge the mountain is reflected in the same lake Loon Lodge faces.

Today, as vacationers, we can all channel the Guy Gannett empire by booking a room at the Loon Lodge, updated to rustic splendor and more exciting than the newspaper gals and guys ever imagined it.

Guy Gannett owned secret luxury hunting and flying camps in “Moosehead Lake and Ross Lake,” says his grandson, Guy Gannett Williams, the son of Jean Gannett Hawley—Guy Gannett’s daughter, who herself was the longtime publisher of the Press Herald, Sunday Telegram, and Evening Express. “Guy Gannett built Forest Park on Moosehead Lake. He also had a smaller fishing camp on Ross Lake.”

Let your imagination run wild. Up north, Gannett’s camps likely included famous Red Sox players like Babe Ruth and Ted Williams.

“Guy loved flying. He founded the Maine Civil Air Patrol and had two planes of his own,” Williams, an artist, says.

When Guy Gannett died in 1954, his daughter Jean took control of the work and fun of running Guy Gannett Publishing. Outside of the boardroom, “My mother wasn’t a hunter,” Williams says. “You’d find her in the kitchen.” But her tastes did include ski resorts and Rangeley. “My stepfather, Richard “Dick” Arnzen, bought Saddleback Mountain.” Guy Gannett Publishing then became owners of the mountain and the lodge, an exciting prospect for young Guy Gannett Williams, who was just a teenager then, because it put a thrilling life of skiing at his doorstep.

“I taught skiing at Saddleback when I was a junior in high school, in 1967,” he says. This led to a skiing career that has landed Williams in the Maine Skiing Hall of Fame. “I’ve instructed at Telluride and Silver Mountain.”

When the Gannetts moved in, “Loon Lodge was called Davis Lodge. It was like a wind tunnel, with the wind outside shrieking inside” the rustic structure. So you’ll have it better than the Gannetts did if you stay at Loon Lodge. “It was cold. But that huge fireplace made up for it.” It’s the place that Guy Gannett Williams sees in his mind when he thinks of Loon Lodge and remembers his childhood.

ROAD WARRIOR

“My stepfather, Dick Arnzen, ran Saddleback Mountain for two years.” The dream was sadly shortened because “Dick died of cancer.”

“Guy Gannett Publishing bought Saddleback.” As for the lodge, “My stepbrother had to sell it for next to nothing.”

“I sold the lodge the year after Dick died, around 1973,” says Williams’s stepbrother and Dick’s son, Breck Arnzen. “I was 19 at the time. I sold it for $50,000.”

“My dad worked for Guy Gannett Publishing from the summer of 1964 through 1974,” says Bob Myers of Rangeley. “We moved to Maine for the position. He came in as controller and then treasurer. It was right around then that Jean Gannett Hawley bought Saddleback Mountain.” Bob remembers being a guest in the Gannett Lodge in Rangeley. “Of course I was only 11 or 12 back then, but it was beautiful—a gorgeous log building right on the lake, with pine trees all around it. The lodge has fantastic views across the lake. It sits down from the road and is close to the lake, so it’s kind of back-to the Saddleback. In Rangeley, there aren’t many places where you can see Saddleback until it kind of sneaks up to you while you’re driving.”

Was it a wind tunnel back then? “My mother said it had icicles from the room and snow on the roof, ‘like Dr. Zhivago.’ It had a big stone fireplace, which is still there. There was a real bear rug” in the Gannett lodge. “I’d never seen anything like that. Once you stare into a bear rug, it’s the kind of thing you don’t forget.” ■

COURTESY PHOTO

NOYES REAL ESTATE AGENCY SERVING THE RANGELEY REGION FOR OVER 60 YEARS!

THE HERRICK FARM - Enjoy unsurpassed views of the western Maine mountains, lakes and Saddleback Ski Area from your custom built 5,200 sq.ft. timber frame lodge on 154 acres. Relax in complete privacy while just minutes from Saddleback Ski area and Rangeley village, all supported by an off-grid system!! Property includes a large garage, barn, woodshed, cabin, fields, enclosed garden area, stone walls, pond, and alternative power system. $1,500,000

Views, 5 acres, large open concept home, 3 bedrooms and a bonus room with attached garage. $279,000

Gorgeous views, privacy and direct sled / ATV access. Cathedral ceilings, furnished, hardwood floors, granite counters and stone work. $330,000

Contemporary home, 5 bedroom, 2.4 acres, hardwood floors, granite counters, full basement, views of Saddleback. $325,000

Charming farmhouse, pristine condition, fantastic views, 25 acres, 10 rooms, 4 bedrooms, 2 1/2 baths, garage, energy efficient.. ATV or sled from your door! $339,000

Let us be your buyer broker and find your perfect vacation-recreation home.

2388 MAIN STREET, RANGELEY, MAINE 04970
207-864-9000 • INFO@NOYESREALTY.COM • WWW.NOYESREALTY.COM

PORTLAND
MONTHLY

FRESH-CAUGHT
LOCAL STORIES

SUBSCRIBE TO PORTLAND MONTHLY
207-775-4339

MAINE CIRCUS ACADEMY

SUMMER CAMP
JUNE 18 - AUG 24

AGES 7-14

WWW.MAINECIRCUSACADEMY.ORG | 4 THOMPSONS PT. PORTLAND

COME SAIL WITH US!

Full and half-day sessions for beginner to advanced sailors

Ages 5 to 17
One or two week sessions
Programs begin June 25th
STEM sessions for 9 to 17 year olds
Programs in Portland, South Portland, and Belgrade Lakes. Scholarships are available!

We offer a full range of adult sailing lessons too!

SAILMAINE
58 Fore Street, Portland
772-7245
learntosail@sailmaine.org
sailmaine.org/youth

The mission of SailMaine is to provide affordable access to the water through community sailing and educational programming.

BROTHERHOOD SPORTSMANSHIP COMMUNITY

A Premiere Two Session Maine Camp for Boys

1-800-473-6104

WWW.CAMPCOBBOSSEE.COM

Have an AIO Summer!

Acadia Institute of Oceanography

Hands-on ocean science curriculum on the coast of beautiful Downeast Maine. Explore diverse marine environments with our professional staff & enjoy a variety of summer activities on Mount Desert Island and Acadia National Park.

LIMITED SPACE STILL AVAILABLE

Summer Science Programs for Students Age 10-18

www.acadiainstitute.com
800-375-0058

44 Years of Educational Summer Programming

Climbing

is just

the beginning.

Salt Pump Summer Camps

www.saltpumpclimbing.com
207 219-8145

Junior Golf

- 1-Week Sessions throughout the summer!
- Full-day camp for ages 9–16 year olds
- Half-day camp for 7–13 year olds (9:00 A.M.–12:30 P.M.)
- Starting June 20th!

Val Halla is synonymous with junior golf in Maine. We have a wonderful staff and top-notch facilities. The tradition continues...thank you for checking out our programs!

We have something for almost every junior whether they are 5 or 18...

60 Val Halla Road, Cumberland, Maine | valhallagolf.com
 FMI: Brian Bickford at bbickford@pga.com

A Blend of STEM Classes & Summer Fun.

Astronomical Adventure Tour Lift Off! We See 3D
 The Beauty of Moving Matter Exoplanet Encounter
Welcome to Mars Guts, Blood, & Brains Robotics
 Thermodynamics Learn Computer Programming
Calculus in a Week Parts & Pieces Reimaging Science

207.325.3600
mssmsummercamp@mssm.org
www.mssm.org/summercamp

Transportation to Portland Available

